Family and Child Visitation

Description:

Family and Child Visitation is a service within the Family-to-Family program. The Family-to-Family program operates in the Mt. Pleasant and East Cleveland Communities. It fosters coordinated planning and services between the County Department of Children and Family Services and the community to improve outcomes for children and families at risk of involvement or currently involved in the child welfare system and promotes safety, permanency and child well-being.

Family and Child Visitations occur near the end of the family reunification processes. At the start of the process the County, by court order, removes the child from the home in order to ensure the child’s safety. After the family has completed all of the necessary County required actions to ensure the safety of the child, the family may arrange for visitations with the child at Murtis Taylor Human Services System. This provides the family with a high level of privacy and removes the stigma associated with visitations at a County government facility. Visitation services help nurture and strengthen relationships between parents and their children.

- Protect Children
- Child permanency and well-being

Community Transportation

Description:

This service transports seniors to and from the Murtis Taylor Senior Center for meals and activities and it also transports senior consumers to and from senior-oriented community programs/services and community resources. Destinations include grocers, food pantries, farmers markets, arts and crafts, cultural, recreational, educational, health and wellness, presentations and field trips. Trips to local resources such as the public library and supportive services such as the Social Security Office are also available.

Seniors telephone into the Senior Center during business hours, weekdays from 9:00 a.m. – 5:30 p.m. to request transport services. Appointments are made at least 3-5 business days in advance. The Scheduler enters the appointments into the database and develops the Van Driver’s daily schedule.

Seniors once supported by family members for transportation to and from the basic community activities that underpin their independence find themselves shut-in, caused by a spike in economic hardship. This service addresses the erosion of the familial safety-net experienced by many seniors and families.

Line and Tap Dancing

Description:

Line and Tap Dancing are means of promoting socialization, health and fitness which ultimately supports independent living. The long-term health impact includes lower blood pressure and cholesterol levels, increased balance control & centering, increased bone mass and increased mobility without joint damage. Participants gain an understanding of the relationship between music and dance. They learn to recognize the use of improvisation and syncopation and how the choreographer uses these elements to express him/herself. The participants select the music and often choreograph unique dances.

Line dance is choreographed dance with a repeated sequence of steps in which the participants dance in one or more lines or rows without regard for the gender of the individuals, all facing the same direction, and executing the steps at the same time. Line dancers may or may not be in physical contact with each other.

Tap dance is a form of dance characterized by a tapping sound that is created from metal plates that are attached to both the ball and heel of the dancer's shoe. Psychotherapy

Description:

A fairly structured framework is provided through which adults pursue change through insight, problem solving and behavioral intervention.

Cognitive Behavioral Therapy is based on the idea that our thoughts cause our feelings and behaviors, not external things, like people and events. We can change the way we think to feel/act better, even if the situation does not change.

Motivational Therapy places emphasis on eliciting self-motivational statements of desire for and commitment to change from clients.

Interpersonal Therapy focuses on past and present social roles and interpersonal interactions, for example disputes with friends or family, grief and loss.

Solution Focused Therapy focuses on what clients want to achieve through therapy rather than on the problems that made them seek help. The focus instead is on the present and future. The client envisions his/her preferred future and in small or large increments, moves toward the desired achievement.

Trauma Recovery Therapy uses therapeutic interventions that help to diminish the recurrence of ongoing symptoms and assist the client in replacing them with more helpful emotions such as peacefulness and physical calm.

- Increase the effectiveness of interpersonal relationships
- Improve coping skills and strategies

Adult Pharmacological Management

Description:

Pharmacological services provide mental health consumers with face-to-face psychiatric evaluations, psychiatric treatment, and pharmaceutical relief from psychiatric symptoms. These services are provided in a comprehensive treatment center that supports outpatient community care under the direction of the Medical Director, a licensed physician and licensed Nursing Director. Pharmacological services are provided based on current research indicating that mental illness is caused by an imbalance of chemicals within the brain. Medications offer relief from the symptoms of this imbalance and enable a person to better manage his/her illness.

Pharmacological services improve symptom management by reducing or eliminating them. This is done through psychiatric evaluation and prescribing medication. For adults this may enable them to function more effectively and improve attention and focus.

Ongoing assessment of psychiatric needs and stability is provided. Medication is monitored for effectiveness. Clients are assisted with the acquisition of free medication (certain medications apply) through the Central Pharmacy Program and Patient Assistance Programs. Information/education about medications, contra-indications, and side effects are provided.

Day Treatment

Description:

Day Treatment provides highly structured, clinically intensive mental health group interventions to stabilize or increase a patient's level of functioning. Activities may include problem solving, conflict resolution, emotion/behavior management, development of coping skills and management of symptoms. Services are clinically indicated with clear admission and discharge criteria. It is a transitional model of acute care that is offered as an alternative to hospitalization and leads to recovery or stabilization at the highest level of functioning for the person served.

The program is based on the philosophy that given adequate support and opportunities for improvement within a community milieu setting, clients can demonstrate control over psychiatric symptoms, maintain motivation and self-direction, improve social interaction, and practice adequate functioning within the general community. In most cases, with an intensive treatment program coupled with ongoing support, clients can rebound faster from setbacks in the course of their illness, shorten crisis periods, and prevent hospitalization or re-hospitalization.

Goals/Outcomes:

- Minimize the impact of major mental illness on a person's life
- Facilitate return to positive functioning and community living

Child Psychotherapy

Description:

This service integrates systems such as family, school, County Jobs and Family Services, and treats the whole child within the context of the family situation.

Play Therapy uses a theoretical model to establish an interpersonal process wherein therapists use the therapeutic powers of play to help clients prevent or resolve psychosocial challenges and achieve optimal growth and development.

Cognitive Behavioral Therapy's approach is that thoughts cause feelings and behaviors, not external things, like people and events. An individual can change the way he/she thinks to feel/act better, even if the situation does not change.

Trauma Focused - Cognitive Behavioral Therapy treats trauma related symptoms that children and adolescents may experience. This treatment uses interventions that include psychoeducation about trauma, relaxation and stress management skills for child and parent and trauma narration. Treatment also incorporates parent and child sessions.

Parent - Child Interactive Therapy uses a family-centered approach which uses coaching from a therapist during treatment for the child and the parent. The parent and child relationship improves through treatment. Positive interaction and effective discipline are encouraged.

Goals/Outcomes:

- Improve social, emotional, and adaptive functioning
- Increase the effectiveness of interpersonal relationships

CHILD BEHAVIORAL HEALTHCARE

School-Based Prevention and Consultation Services

Description:

Prevention is designed to provide mental health services (either group or individual) that reduce the incidence, prevalence or severity of specific types of mental disabilities or emotional disturbances in children. Prevention services presume that the severity of mental disabilities and emotional disturbances can be greatly reduced through mental health interventions before the specific problems become habituated. Prevention services provide environmental support activities that assist those identified by the Cleveland Metropolitan School System, build resilience and acquire skills that will help to improve their quality of life.

Consultation is a formal and systematic information exchange between Murtis Taylor HSS staff and school staff concerning a person other than a client, which is directed towards the development and improvement of individualized service plans and/or techniques involved in the delivery of mental health services. Consultation is focused on the clinical condition of students served by the Cleveland Metropolitan School District in order to provide appropriate and timely mental health intervention if appropriate.

Goals/Outcomes:

- Prevention—Provide environmental support activities that build resilience and skills to help improve life quality
- Consultation—Meet the mental health needs of the school community

CHILD BEHAVIORAL HEALTHCARE

Child Pharmacological Management

Description:

Pharmacological services provide mental health consumers with face-to-face psychiatric evaluations, psychiatric treatment, and pharmaceutical relief from psychiatric symptoms. These services are provided in a comprehensive treatment center that supports outpatient community care under the direction of the Medical Director, a licensed physician. Pharmacological services are provided based on current research indicating that mental illness is caused by an imbalance of chemicals within the brain. Medications offer relief from the symptoms of this imbalance and enable a person to better manage his/her illness.

Pharmacological services improve symptom management by reducing or eliminating them. This is done through psychiatric evaluation and prescribing medication. For adults this may enable them to function more effectively and improve attention and focus.

Ongoing assessment of psychiatric needs and stability is provided. Medication is monitored for effectiveness. Clients are assisted with the acquisition of free medication through the Central Pharmacy Program and Patient Assistance Programs. Information/ education about medications, contra-indications, and side effects is provided.

- Improve or eliminate symptoms

Psychiatric Diagnostic Evaluation without Medical

Description:

Psychiatric Diagnostic Evaluation without Medical is a clinical evaluation provided by a qualified clinician either at specified times, in response to treatment or when significant changes occur. It assesses client needs and functioning to determine appropriate service/treatment based on identification of presenting problems, evaluation of mental status and formulation of a diagnostic impression.

Information is collected, including socio-economic. A diagnostic evaluation is completed to determine needs and appropriateness for treatment. Information gathered includes history of mental health and substance abuse/dependence treatment, support system available, etc. to determine if Murtis Taylor HSS should provide services, or if a referral is needed. Data from the personal history is used to determine admission, referral, or counselor/case manager assignment. An interpretive summary is completed and appropriate treatment is scheduled.

Goals/Outcomes:

- Diagnose emotional and/or developmental disorders
- Develop treatment plan (Individualized Service Plan), if appropriate
- Schedule appropriate treatment

Substance Use Disorder Treatment

Case Management
Integrated SUD/MH for Adults

Description:

Consistent with SAMHSA’s Treatment Improvement Protocol, MTHSS’ Case Management and substance use disorder treatment are sometimes viewed as separate and distinct aspects of the treatment continuum, yet they are complementary and often thoroughly blended. The Protocol is designed to encourage the client to take the lead in identifying needed resources while emphasizing the Client’s right to self-determination and builds upon the Case Manager’s expertise to identify options. Case Management is anchored upon an understanding of clients’ experiences and the world they inhabit. It considers the nature of addiction and the problems it causes; and co-occurring problems with which clients struggle (e.g. mental illness, physical health, housing, incarceration). Providing the least restrictive and disruptive level of care necessary is key to our approach. Case Management offers the client a single point of contact within the Health and Human Services System and consolidates a single point of responsibility across providers. The approach is often community-based, integrating formal and informal care resources. Case Managers understand the natural course of addiction and recovery and attempt to foresee challenges, to understand the options available to manage challenges, and to take appropriate action. In some instances, the Case Manager may intervene directly; in others, the Case Manager will take action to ensure that another person on the care team intervenes as needed.

- Reducing Risk of Relapse (return to substance use)
- Improving Follow up and Utilization of Supportive Services
- Maintaining Coping and Daily Functioning

Substance Use Disorder Treatment

Outpatient Treatment and Intensive Outpatient Treatment
Integrated SUD/MH for Adults

Description:

Outpatient Treatment and Intensive Outpatient Treatment focus on individuals with co-occurring disorders at every level of care. Some clients have serious and persistent mental illness and others have relatively stable disorders of mild to moderate severity. The service utilizes procedures for screening, assessing, enrolling clients and referring clients to external services. If the screening and assessment process establishes a substance abuse or mental illness beyond the agency’s capacity or resources, referrals are made to suitable residential or mental health facilities or other community resources. Staffing includes two linked teams, one specializing in mental illness and the other in substance abuse. Both teams are clinically supervised by a single supervisor who holds both LISW-S and LICDC licenses. While pharmacological management for mental illness is available within the agency, currently addictions pharmacotherapy lies outside the agency’s capacity and appropriate referrals are made as needed.

Groups are central to both Outpatient Treatment and Intensive Outpatient Treatment with Individualized Psychotherapy as an important, supportive adjunct to group sessions. The services support clients by: Providing opportunities for clients to develop communication skills and participate in socialization experiences; Creating a group atmosphere where clients help, support and when necessary, confront one another; Providing structure and discipline into the often chaotic lives of clients; Providing norms that reinforce healthful ways of interacting and a safe and supportive therapeutic milieu that is crucial for recovery; and Providing a venue for group leaders to transmit new information, teach new skills, and guide clients as they practice new behaviors.

Clients experience several different types of groups during the course of treatment, psychoeducational, skills-development, support, and interpersonal process groups. These classifications are not rigid and each type of group borrows ideas and techniques from others. Groups are both heterogeneous and homogeneous. Open-ended heterogeneous groups provide clinicians the flexibility of assigning new clients to ongoing groups and homogeneous groups allow clinicians to address therapeutically relevant issues for a subset of clients such as a co-occurring mental health disorder.

Psychoeducational groups typically focus on the signs and symptoms of mental disorders, medication, and the effects of mental disorders on substance abuse problems. These groups increase client awareness of their specific problems and do so in a safe and positive context. Interrelated Relapse Prevention groups help clients become aware of cues or “triggers” that make them more likely to abuse substances and help them develop alternative coping responses to those cues. Additionally, these groups focus on recognizing cues for the return of psychiatric symptoms and for affect or emotion management, including how to identify, contain, and express feelings appropriately. These groups provide a forum for discussion of the interrelated problems of mental illness and substance abuse, helping participants to identify triggers for relapse through discussion rather than acting upon impulses.

The main difference between outpatient treatment and intensive outpatient treatment lies in the amount of treatment hours received by the client. The other difference is that intensive outpatient treatment might be more appropriate for someone who is unable to attend an inpatient facility, while outpatient treatment may be more appropriate for someone who has completed previous treatment. For both, groups range between 6 and 15 clients. Intensive Outpatient Treatment includes at least 9 hours (up to 12) of therapeutic contact per week and is scheduled for 3 hours of treatment on 3 days within a week. This might entail 2 evenings of back-to-back 90-minute groups and a third evening might include 30 minutes of individual counseling, a 90-minute family session, and an hour-long skills training group.

Substance Use Disorder Treatment

Crisis Intervention Integrated SUD/MH for Adults

Description:

Crisis Intervention focuses on immediate relief and assisting the client to cope with severe physical, emotional, mental or behavioral distress that could lead to relapse (return to substance use) or other negative outcomes. Crisis Intervention is a specific and time-limited form of brief intervention which deals with situations and individuals in distress and in some cases harming themselves and/or those around them without their full knowledge of the situation. Crisis Intervention will address co-occurring problems of mental illness, physical illness or incarceration in the context of the current situation. When clients' distress results in the loss of their ability to solve their own problems and deal with life's dilemmas, external assistance can help the client to return to a normal frame of mind and a balanced lifestyle. Crisis Intervention is short-term and it aims to give clients the necessary tools to immediately cope with the causes of the distress.

Crisis Intervention involves: Educating and informing clients of their capacity to successfully address a crisis and offer ways to push past incidents and retain balance; Observing and helping clients identify their contribution to the crisis situation empowers them to find ways of lessening their emotional trauma; Helping clients realize their personal potential to get through crises, by letting them make decisions and take action to better their lives; Supporting clients to better understand the problems underlying the current situation and thus uncover options on how to break free; Moving clients to view their thoughts and actions and objectively evaluate and assess the impact of problematic beliefs and expectations; and Helping clients confront fear and pain allowing them to overcome the negative emotions which are negatively impacting their lives.

Goals/Outcomes:

- Reducing Risk of Relapse (return to substance use)
- Eliminating Distress of Current Situation and Preventing Negative Outcomes
- Engaging or Reengaging into Treatment
